TWO BILLS WERE PLACED ON FILE

SHIP SUBSIDY AND INTERSTATE COMMERCE REGULATION.

ARE IMPORTANT MEASURES

Mann's Bill Differs From That of the President in Many Points.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—Representative Mann of Illinois today introduced a bill to amend the interstate commerce law. It differs in many respects from the administration measure.

The most important difference is a provision for a bureau of transportation to hear the complaints instead of a special court said to be favored by the president.

It also provides for a bureau after the investigation complaint which shall report to the attorney general and shall decide whether the matter be taken before the interstate commerce commission. The shipper, however, is not barred from taking the case to the commission himself.

Theor are also provisions defining a long and short haul and the fixing of rates; also forbidding the acquiring of stock in competing lines.

Another important bill which was presented today was the ship subsidy, introduced by Rep. Humphrey of Washington state, which is intended to encourage the shipping industry in the Pacific.

NO LIGHT ON THE CRONIN MYSTERY

WIFE SAYS SCHINDLER WAS AT HOME NIGHT OF JAN. 21.

HE WORKED WITH LEUTGART

According to Report, in Chicago Sausage Factory—Twelve Known Robberies and Theft Explained.

Of the two wagonloads of plunder from the John Schindler premises, stored at the police station yesterday, the larger part had been identified and claimed this morning and the authorship of no less than twelve distinct burglaries and thefts cleared up. There were many visitors at police headquarters this forenoon and those who expressed their grateful acknowledgments of stolen property recovered did not hesitate to couple them with words of appreciation of the splendid work of the department in finding the answer to one of the most baffling chains of associated mysteries in the history of the city. In the end, it is believed that the litigation speaks explain no less than twenty crimes. Property has been identified and recovered by the following parties:

Joseph Donahue: A set of tin harness which was stolen from him during the autumn of 1908. The harness had been cut off and the nickel parts painted black.

Joseph Ryan: A tobacco truck, Fred Raby: A saw, block-plane, combination kit of tools, two chisels, six bits, two hand-axes, a saw file, and a cold chisel.

Charles Chase: A back-saw, a hand-saw, and other tools. James Shearer: A porch chair which was taken from his home on Mineral Point avenue last summer.

J. L. Bennett: Collars, a pair of new patent leather shoes, and a box of soap. Daisy Cosgrove: A fur box and groceries.

Edward M'Auley: Coal and provisions. George Yahn: A hog, pair of scales, corn, and other articles.

Solomon Spoon: Silverware, gold bracelets, necklaces, watches, U. S. navy blankets, rugs, and other valuables.

Mr. and Mrs. Churchill: A bed-spread, bed-clothing, and a quilt. Fred Woodruff: Silverware and household goods.

Rock River Cotton Co.: A bundle of yarn. Horse blankets, some harness, carpenter's tools, two saws, grinders and a number of other articles which had not been claimed were on hand this noon. The photograph at the Schindler home was purchased from Edward Huges this winter. John Thompson of 1402 Myra avenue had about two dozen jars of canned fruit stolen from his cellar not long ago but it is not deemed probable that any of it found its way to the Schindler house.

Worked With Leutgart? Schindler at one time worked on William Stevens' farm in the town of Center. He was regarded as a very good workman but Mr. Stevens learned to fear him greatly and was glad to dispense with his services after about a year's time. To John Mitchell, who knew him at that time, is attributed the statement that Schindler was working with the notorious wife murderer, Leutgart, in the Chicago sausage-factory about the time one of the latter's pawns was supposed to have been put through the machine. Schindler was alleged to have wrought the financial ruin of his father-in-law, the old country. It is said that he was an accomplished penman and could turn out many styles of hand-writing.

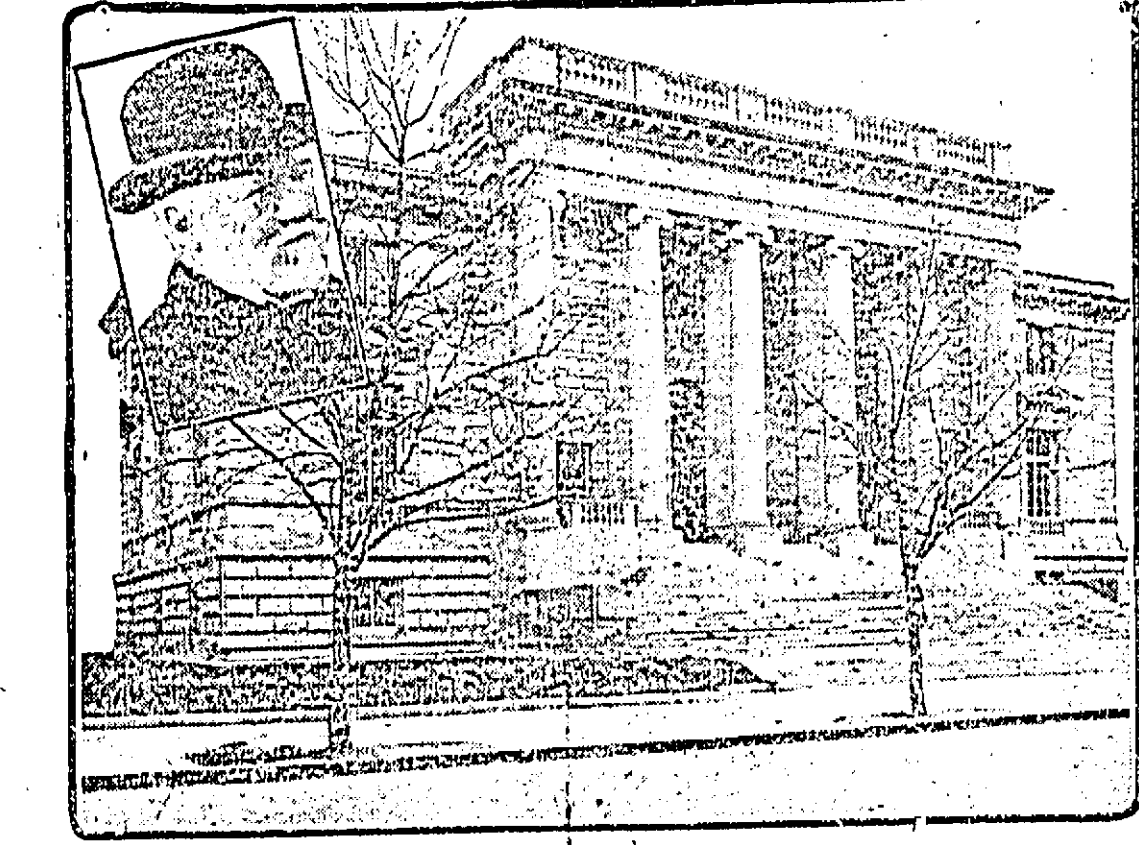

Arrested Three Years Ago. Officer John Brown shadowed the man about two and a half years ago and uncovered a quantity of groceries which had been stolen from Bernard Pfahls, keeper of the Country Club. Schindler's wife was then in a precarious condition and on that account his punishment was restricted to a heavy fine.

Wife on Cronin Murder. When questioned yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Schindler declared that her husband was at home playing with the children the night of the Michael Cronin murder. She remembers that distinctly because following the tragedy neighbors came to their houses to get a lantern and her husband hunted one up for them. Except for a brief interval following the wedding of the woman when she went out to the yard to empty the dish-water, she was constantly aware of his presence in the house. Before he died, Schindler told Officer Brown that he could not resist the inclination to help himself to other people's property, though he had succeeded in so doing for about a year after his former arrest.

John Henderson GOES TO ASYLUM

Laboring Man Residing on South Main Street Became Violently Drugged Last Night and Tried to Wreck Home.

John Henderson, a laboring man who is said to have been confined in insane asylums in Indiana on three different occasions, became mentally unbalanced last evening and began wrecking the furniture at his home on South Main street. One of his seven little children ran over to the home of Grant Fisher and asked that a call be sent to the police department. Officers Champlin, Panning and Dorn responded and the unfortunate man was conveyed to the lock-up. On an order from Judge Sale he was examined by Dr. Charles Sutherland and J. P. Penber this morning, found insane, and committed to the Mendota asylum. The wife and family are said to be in dire need and will have to be helped by the county. Henderson at one time lived at Star Lake, near Minocqua, and came here a few months ago to work in the sugar factory.

PASSENGER TRAINS MANY HOURS LATE

Derailment at Lodi Causes Hours of Delay—Road Prepares for Coming Storm.

All the morning passenger trains from the north on the North-Western railway, the first of which is due in this city at 4:17 a. m., numbering seven in all, were held up until after 11:30 this morning by a derailment at Lodi, Wis., on the Madison division. Seven of these trains, 502, 514, 507, 512, 506, 510, and 518, all due in this city between 4:17 a. m. and 11:30 a. m. In addition to this, trains 517 and 501 were greatly delayed. In consequence of the delay to the passenger service, all freight trains were held up. That more trouble is expected from heavy snow, is shown by reports which have been issued to all sections from the Northern Wisconsin division. A heavy snow-storm, of which the furries today are but forerunners, is bearing down from the north and orders have been issued from the general office that every man available be hired and one stationed at each switch to keep it clear. Expense is not to be considered in an effort to keep the traffic moving. These precautions may be rendered useless should the present wind prevail during the snow-storm. The light thaw of last week has converted the snow into a hard sheet and carried by the wind, the snow will be blown into all the cuts and block trains completely until the snow plows can clear the way.

TOBACCO DEALERS HAVE NOT STARTED SEASON'S WORK YET

Express Distrust of 1909 Crop—Delay Work Until Favorable Weather and Arrival of Crop.

With one exception, there is not a single tobacco dealer in Janesville who has started to prepare the 1909 crop for market and from present indications there will be very great amount of the leaf this winter, even after the weather becomes favorable and the crops begin to come into the city. This seems to be a general distrust of the 1909 crop in spite of the statements current last fall that it had recovered from the severe drought and would measure fully up to standard. Although many of the larger corporations had their buyers out to contract for the growing crop, in many cases snatching up the poorer grades, most of the local dealers have delayed buying until it could be seen how the leaf would look when the growers were ready to dispose of their holdings.

The local warehousemen have not yet begun work or even started to receive the crop with the exception of R. L. Fisher who has had a small force at work. According to statements made this morning, the average amount of the leaf this year as compared with former years. Several of the firms, including F. S. Bates, M. F. Green and Sons, and Sanford Soverhill expect to be busy within a few weeks and although they could not state definitely just how much would be handled, seemed to imply that the amount would be normal.

Other prominent firms, A. L. Fisher, A. N. Jones, Penber Bros., McGuffin & Birkenmeyer, N. L. Carlo S. B. Hedges, J. A. Ryan, G. H. Russell, John Soullman, and J. P. Donahoe have not yet started operations but expect to take care of what they have as soon as the weather breaks and the leaf arrives.

Most of the firms are not backward in expressing their distrust of the crop, stating that no purchases had been made in the field and that the problem of the receiver this year would be a difficult one. Until favorable conditions arise, they will be "on the fence" and will inspect the leaf rigidly before accepting it.

According to reports, there has already been difficulty experienced between the dealers who bought the leaf in the field and the farmers when the latter brought their crop to the warehouse. One of the original price twenty per cent and it was the general opinion that fifty per cent would have been about right. Up to the present time, the matter had not been settled. Incidents like this have made the dealers a little wary and besides confirming their opinion that those who did not contract for the crop in the field pursued the right course.

JAKE KUZINSKI WAS TOO FREE WITH FIST

Found Guilty in Municipal Court This Morning of Assaulting Ralph Williamson at Rous Saloon.

On a charge of striking Ralph Williamson in the eye without any provocation, at Philip Jones' saloon yesterday, Jacob Kuzinski was tried and convicted of assault and battery in municipal court this morning. Judge Pritchard sentenced him to pay a fine of $10 and costs amounting to $6.44 or spend fifteen days in jail and he took the latter alternative.

RAILWAY RATE CASE WAS STARTED TODAY

Taking Of Testimony Begun In Trial Of State Of Kentucky VS. Railroads.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—The taking of testimony in the famous rate litigation between the State of Kentucky and the various lines of railroad doing business in that state was begun here today, the testimony taken being that of the officers of the Louisville and Nashville road. The litigation, which was begun nearly three years ago, revolves around the action of the Alabama legislature in fixing passenger fares at a rate of two and a half cents a mile and also reducing freight rates. The rates have been in force for some time past, long enough, so the state declares, to show conclusively that the schedules are too low to be maintained.

DRAG SKELETONS INTO LIMELIGHT

SLANDER SUIT TO EXPOSE DU PONT FAMILY'S SECRETS.

INTEREST IS STATE-WIDE

Delaware Excited Over Prospect Of Sensational Disclosures In Trial Of Suit Brought By Multi-Millionaire.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Wilmington, Del., Jan. 4.—In a perfect fever of expectation practically the whole State of Delaware, especially, of course, the social circles, more or less intimately acquainted with the various branches of the Du Pont family, may be said to be looking forward to the trial of the suit for slander brought by Alfred I. Du Pont, the multi-millionaire head of the Du Pont Powder Company, against Mrs. Elizabeth Canby Bradford Du Pont, his distant relative by marriage. The case is to be tried here before the Superior Court which is now in session. It promises to be the most sensational suit of its kind ever tried in this state and there is every reason to believe that it will offer an opportunity to drag all the skeletons in the closets of the Du Pont family into public view.

Long before the suit for slander was filed the family quarrels and feuds of the Du Ponts furnished unlimited material for gossip among the knowing. The filing of the suit, expected by some, came as a surprise to others, but it created a general sensation when it became known that the defendant in the suit had retained William Salsbury as her counsel. The fact that Salsbury, who had caused the original break in the Du Pont family, and who is known to be eager to even up his score against the various branches of the family, was selected to represent the defendant, gave promise that every bit of soiled linen of the Du Pont family would be washed in open court.

The history of the family troubles which eventually led to the slander suit soon to be tried, dates back some fifty or more years, but they first reached a acute stage about twelve years ago, when William Salsbury married Mary Du Pont, divorced wife of William Du Pont, the wealthiest member of the family of that name. William Du Pont obtained his legal separation in the Dakota courts and Salsbury was conspicuously mentioned in the divorce proceedings.

William Du Pont and his divorced wife are first cousins. He is a son of the late Gen. Henry Du Pont and brother of Col. Henry A. Du Pont, the senior United States Senator from Delaware. She is a daughter of the late Victor Du Pont, formerly a lawyer of this city. Salsbury studied law with May's father and it was the general belief that the young student and the girl were in love one with the other, before the marriage broke up.

It created no end of comment when May, immediately after the ceremony which made her the wife of her cousin William, picked up a spray of orange blossoms from her corsage and turned, with an eloquent glance toward the lawyers to Salsbury.

The marriage of William Du Pont and his wife was unhappy from the beginning and nobody was particularly surprised when William went to Dakota and obtained a divorce from his cousin. Neither did it cause more than a mere ripple of surprise when a short time afterward the divorced wife of William Du Pont married Salsbury. The two were married by the Rev. H. Ashtor Henry, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, in this city. As the Episcopal church does not approve of the remarriage of divorced persons, the minister was severely censured by the late Bishop Coleman. His position became untenable and he left the country, taking up his residence in Switzerland.

After their marriage the Salsburys were ostracized by practically all the branches of the Du Pont family. Salsbury, who was for a number of years a Democrat aspirant for the U. S. Senatorship, became so unpopular that he was compelled to drop out of politics. Bitter remarks were made by the Salsburys and the Du Ponts and gossip were kept busy carrying tales from one side to the other, flamer had it that some very spicy and scandalous remarks were uttered and in the present suit it is charged that Mrs. Elizabeth Canby Bradford Du Pont originated them.

There are countless ramifications of the Du Pont family and it is an open secret that at last ten distinct factions exist among the various branches. Nearly all of them are in some way involved in this sensational family trouble and many, having appeared as witnesses in court, the Salsburys can have his way. Among those, said to be involved in the matter, is mentioned Mrs. Bessie G. Du Pont, from whom Alfred I. Du Pont, the complainant in the slander suit, obtained a divorce in Dakota some years ago on grounds of "cruelty and inhuman treatment."

Alfred I. Du Pont married again and it is remarked as one of the peculiar features of this family quarrel, that the mansion near Wilmington, which Mrs. Bessie G. Du Pont occupies, is the property of the present Mrs. Alfred I. Du Pont.

SNOW CRUSHED IN WING OF BUILDING

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Orfordville, Jan. 4.—Saturday the weight of the snow upon the roof of O. N. Hoagard's tobacco warehouse crushed in the east wing of the building and damaged the elevator and scales. The portion of the structure damaged was 36 by 40 feet in dimensions and will have to be rebuilt. Mr. Hoagard has engaged a force of thirty-five men and has been rushing them to have it completed as soon as possible in order that he may be sorting in the warehouse. The damage done to the building amounted to $500.

BURPEE'S ARGUMENTS ARE RIDDLED BY FACTS AS TO LAW'S REAL REQUIREMENTS

ATTY. CHARLES H. HEMINGWAY WRITES ON RULE BY COM. MISSION.

SHOWS THE REAL MEANING

Takes Law Up Section by Section and Explains What is Really Meant by Those Who Framed Its Provisions.

(By Chas. H. Hemingway.)

The obvious purpose of Mr. Burpee's paper on the Wisconsin commission law, and which is now being circulated as a campaign document by certain interests, appears to be to throw dust in the public's eyes, as he deals in both real and imaginary objections to the law, and makes no pretense of discussing government by commission on its merits. It is the spurious plea of the trained able lawyer, seeking to make the worse appear the better reason.

Some of his statements are dangerously near the line that separates truth from falsehood; often his conclusions are wholly unjustified by his premises; while he often and ingeniously constructs a man of straw and then proceeds to slaughter this creature of his overwrought imagination. He was asked and expected "to pick all the flaws he could" and he did it with a vengeance.

In the belief that Janesville can best judge whether it wants commission government if it has all the facts, I offer these observations on Mr. Burpee's article, in particular and on commission government in general. If my remarks shall in any way serve to show up either the merits or the demerits of the law more plainly, my purpose will have been served, if not that of the special interest.

That the law has defects will be admitted. A large number of eminent lawyers, the judges, lawyers, and the legislature present it as the best bill they could frame at this time. Experience alone will prove its defects as it has in every other law ever passed. Mr. Burpee thinks the law should be made perfect to his mind before we adopt it. To insist that a law shall be perfect in the mind of a lawyer who is opposed to the principle it embodies is to insist upon the impossible.

Mr. Burpee feels that the election of an outsider would be a humiliating confession that Janesville is incapable of self-government. Then an outsider superintendent of schools is a confession of our ignorance; a business manager, of our business incapacity; and a preacher a confession that we have no one who could be transformed into a spiritual adviser. We agree with his sage observation that there is no imminent danger of an outsider being elected.

He fears the discrepancy in salaries will deluge us with candidates for mayor and that there will be no candidates for councilmen. The chances of being elected councilman are two to one in the first election. Twenty-five hundred dollars salary is considerably more than the average mechanic, business or professional man is earning today. These two facts will probably prevent the death Mr. Burpee fears.

Such positions in the public service never have gone begging even though there is the re-election bugaboo. A good salary and the desire to be re-elected are two mighty incentives to efficient work. That such work will be rewarded, Mr. Burpee's political record shows.

He goes at length into the wonderful powers which the mayor has at present, but forgets to add "in theory." The king of England retains the right of absolute veto in all legislation. But he hasn't used it in more than a century and doesn't dare to. The mayor, in fact, is a presiding officer, with a veto in case of a tie, and an inconsequential veto, as it takes six to pass a measure and but seven to pass it over his veto.

The mayor is a figurehead under our present system. This is the confession of every honest mayor. The mayor would have more power in a commission. He would have a vote on every proposition. He and one other could decide something; now he must convert six. He could introduce a measure and force it to a vote; he can't do it today.

He complains it takes seven out of eleven now to spend the city's money; under the commission, two out of three would do it. Why not? The proportion is the same. Under the commission, two can prevent an expenditure which is quite as important; it takes five in the present system; the council is a tie, the mayor is powerless to help or hinder, yet any alderman can carry it or defeat it. In the commission, the mayor as well as a councilman could do it.

He thinks it is a plurality of executive heads, therefore objectionable—a democrat quoting Alexander Hamilton. The commission would determine the policy, as the directors of a corporation do; but each member would be the executive head of his department with real duties and responsibilities. It would be possible to locate responsibility. Today that is impossible.

He is right when he says the law is indefinite in its statements as to whether library board and fire and police commissions would be done away with. In the Des Moines plan, he states they are found, hence it may be inferred they would continue. If they do not continue to exist, the commission can create them if it wishes.

The president is commander-in-chief of the army and navy, but he appoints another to take the field. Some commission would be the chief of the fire and police departments, but he would appoint, subject to confirmation, the men to perform the actual duties. They would be responsible to him and to the people.

In effect, it makes practically no difference whether these boards are abolished or not, except that it may be said to determine it, but we will not recently do that very thing to the people who had the right to appoint a chief of police, there is nothing new about it. The legislature will meet soon and will no doubt clear up this mooted question.

His hullabaloo about supervisors and justices of the peace are pure humbug. If he is mystified he is the only lawyer I know, who is. They are both constitutional officers. Wars would still remain and our representation would remain the same. This rule was laid down in State vs. Goldsticker, 40 Wis., 121. If the charter has provided for the election of justices in a city, the legislature can not thereafter deprive its inhabitants of the right to elect them.

Mr. Burpee fears the commissioners will have nothing to do but draw their salaries. Since they are executive officers, (Continued on page 10).

STARVATION FACES COVEYS OF QUAIL

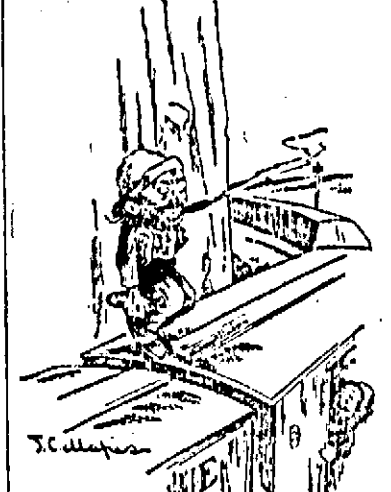

Snow Prevents Birds From Securing Food—Farmers Should Feed Them to Prevent Extinction.

Snow, which has covered the ground to a considerable depth, and also cut off the only means of subsistence of the Wisconsin quail, together with the severe cold, has decimated the coveys of that distinctly American game bird. The state has passed rigid game laws to save the remnants of the former numerous coveys from slaughter by hunters but has made no provision to keep them from starvation during the winter.

In connection with the matter of feeding the quail during the winter, a "practice" that many states have recommended, Mr. George H. Sherman of Edgerton has sent the following communication. In it he is giving directions for feeding the birds. He is not alone in his interest for the fact disappearing coveys for several communications have already been received relative to the same matter. Mr. Sherman's letter follows.

Edgerton, Wis., Jan. 3, 1910.
Editor, "Janesville Gazette."
This is an exceptionally hard winter and the ground, covered with snow, deprives the quail of their food. Since the quail are pets of the farmer, it should be the duty of every farmer who has any of these coveys on his farm to provide food for them by placing a little straw on the snow, or ground, if possible, and scattering a little small grain thereon—buckwheat if he has it. I have been engaged in this work and have already found quail dead, apparently from starvation. Quail are becoming more numerous in this country but if they are not cared for, may be entirely wiped out during the present winter.

BEST IN STATE IS THE VERDICT

POULTRY SHOW RIVALS FINEST EVER HELD IN STATE.

PRIZES SELDOM EQUALLED

Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association to Be Congratulated on Success of Present Show.

That the Second Annual Exhibition of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association, now in session at the West Side Hotel, eclipses anything of the kind ever held in this city, or in this section of the state, or even in the whole state in point of the excellence of the birds shown, is the opinion of poultry experts who have visited the show during the two days that it has already been open.

No higher grade of birds have ever been grouped together in any one show, even in Milwaukee. Neither has there been prizes of greater cost or more variety offered. As regards high-class fowls, number of coops and exhibits, and excellence of prizes, the present show completely surpasses the recent exhibition held in Beloit and except in regard to numbers, more than equals the best show that Milwaukee ever held.

Nothing has been skimped by the association in an effort to make the show a great success. The officers have worked and are working tirelessly to classify and record the different exhibits; a large and well-lighted hall has been secured, one of the best judges in the country, D. T. Helmlich of Jacksonville, Ill., has been secured; the coops, notable for neatness and convenience, are arranged to the best advantage; while those who have charge of the floor bend every effort to accommodate the exhibitors and visitors.

That the work of the association is appreciated by the exhibitors is shown by the number of prize-winning birds that have been entered by the best breeders in the state. Reconsidering the fact that if an association is willing to offer such an array of prizes as the local organization has put up, their birds will be scored by a competent judge, and if successful, will win a substantial prize instead of a mere excuse, they have hastened to enter the best in their coops. This statement can be verified by any one who will manifest interest enough to pay the fifteen cents necessary to get into the rink, even though he be ignorant of the fine points of the birds. Every exhibit, from the tiny bantams and brightly colored Rhode Island Reds to the portly Orpingtons and pure white Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes, shows every mark of high-class breeding.

"I have been attending poultry shows for the past twenty-five years," said Will McVicar, "and during all that time I have never witnessed a better show."

In order to interest the younger element in good poultry, the association has arranged to allow all the children in the grade schools to attend free of charge this afternoon. Tomorrow the kindergarten members will be the guests of the association. A special feature, that will interest everyone, old and young, will be an incubator "working at full speed." The owners have so arranged it that chicks will be hatched every day.

Other things that may be of interest to boys, especially those who raise pigeons, are the different breeds of that kind of bird. The exhibits this year are larger than ordinary, and this can also be said of the ducks, geese and turkeys.

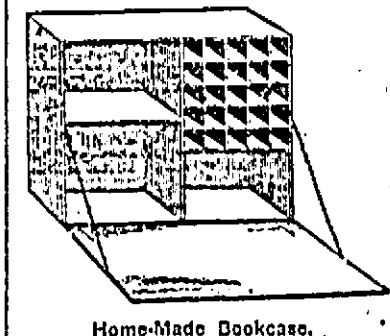

This afternoon the official judge, D. T. Helmlich, assisted by a clerk, began to score the birds. Tomorrow morning the ribbons will be put on as fast as awarded.

BOOKCASE IS EASILY MADE

Combined with Writing Desk is Plain, Neat and Attractive and Quite Useful and Ornamental.

This combination writing desk and book-case is plain, neat and attractive, and is quite useful and ornamental. Secure a deal box from the grocery. Take a one-half-inch board the required height of the box, then another board lengthwise for the book shelf. Take the rack from a box having contained glass fruit jars, and fit in the upper right-hand corner of the box, for the required pigeon-holes, leaving the lower part for stationary and other articles. Fasten the door on the side of the box with hinges and attach a chain to each side. Screw to the wall.

Be sure and get it the required height, when open, as the door serves for a writing table. Put the inside of the door with one sheet of wadding, and cover with resins green, or terra cotta red outing cloth. If more expensive material is desired, purchase one-half yard of dark green felted cloth. Use brass headed tacks at intervals to fasten it on with, stretch as smooth and tight as possible. Paint the whole, inside and out, with white enamel paint and line the outside with a burlap rule, using either gilt or brown paint. Cherry, oak or walnut stain can be used, instead of

ANTISDEL WRITES COUNTY TEACHERS CIRCULAR LETTER

Ideals For School Influence and Gives Rules For Conduct of Schools.

That the nation-wide movement for the development and enlargement of the scope of influence of the country schools is being vigorously prosecuted in this county and that the movement is meeting with the interest of both the teachers and the school directors as well as the encouragement and aid of the county officials, is shown by the following letter sent to each county school teacher in Rock county by County Superintendent of Schools O. D. Antisdel:

"This circular letter is sent to all the schools of Rock county giving me a good idea of what teachers and districts have done. Most teachers are doing creditable work, and most districts have improved the general condition and equipment so that there is much to encourage you to greater efforts to raise the standard and efficiency of Rock county schools. You need not feel that you stand alone in your work, but rather that you are a co-worker with hundreds of others, who are not only imparting knowledge of books but are also elevating educational ideals in their communities and guiding their pupils into better habits of health, thought, morality and good citizenship. If you are working with this broader view of teaching in mind then some measure of success must attend your efforts.

"This circular letter of suggestions is sent out with the hope of further unifying the school work of the county, and of making it stronger and more efficient. Some points will apply to you, some to other teachers. Let us note wherein our work can be strengthened, and strive to improve it.

"Discipline—in the school room, on the grounds, at all times—is vital to good school work. Careful obedience and cooperation from our pupils should be your first aim. Tact, sympathy, energy, neatness, love for the pupils and work, are some of the qualities you need to secure good discipline.

"Care about the comfort and convenience of your pupils will aid greatly about discipline, and the efficiency of the school will be increased.

"Seating—keeping mischievous pupils apart, and having seats and desks of proper size for pupils—helps much in discipline. Positions in sitting and standing are also important.

"Fire—started in time to have room warm when scholars arrive, and care in keeping a good even temperature—are essential. Know your stove.

"Ventilation—either by foul air pipes, or boards under window sashes—needs careful attention. Also open doors and windows at intervals, if room is light. Keep drafts off from children.

"Keep room well lighted; saving the eyes, providing headrests and desks. Ventilation of all buildings is essential. The teacher has an important part in this work, but school boards should keep buildings scrubbed out.

"Assignment of lessons. This is one of the weakest points in the work of most teachers. They should prepare much more for it, and give much more time to it. The same is true of teaching writing and grading pupils by the Manual.

"Compulsory attendance—it is helping. United effort is needed now. Nearly every parent reported to me has been visited or written to. Some teachers have not carefully inquired about conditions before reporting. So a blank is sent now to be returned to me soon. Fill out every column carefully and fully after diligent inquiry, and after comparing the pupils' records census list and your pupils registered. Show how many days each pupil has attended each month to Jan. 1, and total for the four months. Age, distance and parents' full name and address (giving rural delivery, are very important.) Special care is needed for the part showing those between 7 and 11 not attending. Be sure to give reasons for not attending, or to state what other school any may attend. Give full particulars about any children coming from any other district or going from your district to any other. Also about any who have come to your district since July 1, 1909, or who have moved to another district since then, stating to or from what district.

"Rock county teachers have been very earnest and loyal in their profession, and thus have helped to raise the standards and conditions of our schools. This record should inspire us now to careful, sincere and united efforts for the future, that we may still advance."

MAKE ELECTRIC COFFEE POT

In Its Construction Care Should Be Used to Prevent Possibility of Short Circuit.

A simple electrically heated coffee pot can be made as follows:

Procure a round tin can about two quarts' capacity. This can should be about five inches in diameter and should be open at one end, says Scientific American.

The open end should be round and smooth, so that a wooden cover can be easily fitted into it.

Cover the bottom and sides of the can with heavy felt, sticking it on with shellac. Put on a layer of elec-trician's tape over the felt, and stick a piece of fiber or cardboard on the bottom. Then give the whole outside of the coffee pot a couple of good coats of shellac. It is very important that this part of the work be done, since if the can is not properly covered with felt, the heat generated in the coffee pot will be conducted off so quickly by the air, that it will be impossible to boil water in it.

The next step is to make a cover for the can. This cover should be made from hard wood, should fit tightly, and should have a small hole in it to allow steam to escape. A standard water-proof lamp socket should be screwed to the inner side of the cover, and the lead-in wire should be brought out through small holes drilled in the cover for that purpose. Each wire should be brought through a separate hole, so as to avoid possibility of a short circuit; and wherever there are live metal parts care should be taken to insulate them, as it is very easy to get a short circuit where all parts are exposed to steam.

The leads from the socket should be connected to a screw plug by a suitable length of flexible lamp cord. Screw an ordinary 32-candle-power lamp into the water-proof socket. Cover the joint with tape and shellac to keep the steam away from it.

The coffee pot is now complete, and all that is required is to fill the pot with water and coffee, put the cover on with the lamp projecting down into the pot, and screw the plug into the handiest lamp socket.

HORN BLOWN BY ELECTRICITY

Used on an Automobile—Chauffeur Can Manipulate It by Button on Steering Wheel.

A horn which blows by electricity is among recent novelties patented. The immense possibilities of such an apparatus will be at once apparent. It will find instant use on automobiles, for instance, doing away with the bull horn now commonly resorted to. Instead of using one hand to manipulate the horn, the chauffeur can sound the horn by merely pressing a button conveniently placed in the rim of the steering wheel. It can also be profitably employed on a larger scale, especially on ships at sea during foggy weather. Connected with a mechanical apparatus, this electric horn can be made to sound at regular intervals without the necessity of supplying complicated machinery, storage batteries doing the trick.

THE HEAVENS IN JANUARY.

By Professor Eric Doolittle, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The New Year a wonderful one for astronomical events. The Planet Venus reaches its greatest brightness January 7th. Three comets now visible.

The year 1910 will be distinguished by several most interesting astronomical events. First of all in importance is doubtless the return of Halley's comet, that wonderful celestial object which toward the end of spring will shine out so brightly in the evening sky that it will attract the attention of every one. Then here will be ing sky on February 12. During nearly the entire year it will remain a morning star, only returning to the evening heavens on November 26. After this date we will see it slowly moving out from behind the sun, but for many months afterward it will be very much less brilliant than it is at present.

August, will continue to grow fainter until next September, when it will be only slightly brighter than a second magnitude star. At this time the earth and Mars will be on opposite sides of the sun, more than 230 million miles apart, so that in the telescope the planet will appear only about one-seventh as large as it now does. Even at present the two bodies are so far apart that only the larger markings can be seen, even in a large telescope. The disc of the planet is now far from round, its shape being nearly like that of the moon when about nine days old.

The beautiful planet Jupiter, which is now seen rising majestically in the East soon after midnight, next April will be high in the heavens by 9 o'clock in the evening, and will remain our brightest and most interesting evening star until October 18. On this date the sun, in its regular eastward motion along its path, A. V. B., Figure 1, will pass the planet, which accordingly will then become a morning star. Similarly Saturn will be overtaken by the sun and enter the morning sky on April 16. Saturn and Mars are now near together in the sky, but the latter planet has a very rapid in eastern motion of its own that the sun cannot overtake and pass it until September 27.

Thus of the three bright planets which during the month will move westward, out of the constellation Aries along the path P. H., Figure 1, it was visible in a telescope of moderate size, but as it had passed nearest the sun the day before and was then, far outside the orbit of the earth, and rapidly drawing away from us, it grew rapidly fainter, and can now only be seen with the largest instruments.

It is hoped that by the end of the month it will be bright enough to be seen in a small telescope or good field glass. To enable the observer to find it easily, a larger map, Figure 3, is added.

The comet is now moving rapidly toward the west among the stars and drawing nearer the sun. On March 23 it will pass to the west of that body and enter the morning sky, but for some weeks before this date it should have become bright enough to be seen with the naked eye. On May 18 it will pass between the earth and sun, re-entering the evening sky and moving very rapidly across the heavens from the west to the east. For several days after this date, it will probably be a conspicuous and striking object.

A committee of astronomers of various countries has been formed for keeping the comet under constant observation during its present appearances. From its close approach to Venus on May 18 (and to the earth on May 18) it is hoped that exact values of the masses of these planets may be obtained. At the passage of the earth, through the tail on the latter date, careful meteorological observations will be made to discover what (if any) effects, electrical or otherwise, are produced in our atmosphere. Above all, it is hoped that a continuous series of photographs of the comet will be obtained. It being caught at one observatory after it has got at another further east. HALLEY'S COMET.
There are three comets now visible in the sky. The first of these is a very faint little object which returns to the sun every six years, and which now lies so low down in the southwest just after sunset that it cannot be well seen from northern observatories.

The second is a now bright little comet discovered on December 7. At its discovery it was at the point C, Figure 1, a little above a straight line joining the stars D and E. At the time this is written its path among the stars and its future appearance cannot be predicted.

HORN BLOWN BY ELECTRICITY

Used on an Automobile—Chauffeur Can Manipulate It by Button on Steering Wheel.

A horn which blows by electricity is among recent novelties patented. The immense possibilities of such an apparatus will be at once apparent. It will find instant use on automobiles, for instance, doing away with the bull horn now commonly resorted to. Instead of using one hand to manipulate the horn, the chauffeur can sound the horn by merely pressing a button conveniently placed in the rim of the steering wheel. It can also be profitably employed on a larger scale, especially on ships at sea during foggy weather. Connected with a mechanical apparatus, this electric horn can be made to sound at regular intervals without the necessity of supplying complicated machinery, storage batteries doing the trick.

THE HEAVENS IN JANUARY.

By Professor Eric Doolittle, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The New Year a wonderful one for astronomical events. The Planet Venus reaches its greatest brightness January 7th. Three comets now visible.

The year 1910 will be distinguished by several most interesting astronomical events. First of all in importance is doubtless the return of Halley's comet, that wonderful celestial object which toward the end of spring will shine out so brightly in the evening sky that it will attract the attention of every one. Then here will be ing sky on February 12. During nearly the entire year it will remain a morning star, only returning to the evening heavens on November 26. After this date we will see it slowly moving out from behind the sun, but for many months afterward it will be very much less brilliant than it is at present.

August, will continue to grow fainter until next September, when it will be only slightly brighter than a second magnitude star. At this time the earth and Mars will be on opposite sides of the sun, more than 230 million miles apart, so that in the telescope the planet will appear only about one-seventh as large as it now does. Even at present the two bodies are so far apart that only the larger markings can be seen, even in a large telescope. The disc of the planet is now far from round, its shape being nearly like that of the moon when about nine days old.

The beautiful planet Jupiter, which is now seen rising majestically in the East soon after midnight, next April will be high in the heavens by 9 o'clock in the evening, and will remain our brightest and most interesting evening star until October 18. On this date the sun, in its regular eastward motion along its path, A. V. B., Figure 1, will pass the planet, which accordingly will then become a morning star. Similarly Saturn will be overtaken by the sun and enter the morning sky on April 16. Saturn and Mars are now near together in the sky, but the latter planet has a very rapid in eastern motion of its own that the sun cannot overtake and pass it until September 27.

Thus of the three bright planets which during the month will move westward, out of the constellation Aries along the path P. H., Figure 1, it was visible in a telescope of moderate size, but as it had passed nearest the sun the day before and was then, far outside the orbit of the earth, and rapidly drawing away from us, it grew rapidly fainter, and can now only be seen with the largest instruments.

It is hoped that by the end of the month it will be bright enough to be seen in a small telescope or good field glass. To enable the observer to find it easily, a larger map, Figure 3, is added.

The comet is now moving rapidly toward the west among the stars and drawing nearer the sun. On March 23 it will pass to the west of that body and enter the morning sky, but for some weeks before this date it should have become bright enough to be seen with the naked eye. On May 18 it will pass between the earth and sun, re-entering the evening sky and moving very rapidly across the heavens from the west to the east. For several days after this date, it will probably be a conspicuous and striking object.

A committee of astronomers of various countries has been formed for keeping the comet under constant observation during its present appearances. From its close approach to Venus on May 18 (and to the earth on May 18) it is hoped that exact values of the masses of these planets may be obtained. At the passage of the earth, through the tail on the latter date, careful meteorological observations will be made to discover what (if any) effects, electrical or otherwise, are produced in our atmosphere. Above all, it is hoped that a continuous series of photographs of the comet will be obtained. It being caught at one observatory after it has got at another further east. As telescopes are few on the part of the earth opposite the meridian of Greenwich, an expedition will be sent to the Hawaiian Islands for this purpose.

less in expenditure, and all because the public till is flexible and easy of access. Our own state furnishes many object lessons.

The state is just now engaged in erecting a statehouse at an estimated cost of $6,000,000 to be completed in six years.

The Chicago and North-Western road is building a union station in Chicago to cost three times the money, and the work will be completed within two years from the time it was started.

The state has already spent $150,-

000 on a time-binding plant at Wau-pau, and is asked to spend half a million more to complete the enterprise, with full knowledge of the fact that the scheme is impracticable, and that the interest on the money invested represents more than the saving on the output to consumers.

Some years ago the state spent

$2,000 for water mains to connect the State School for the Blind with the city water service. A long term contract was made with the water company, and for years the state enjoyed the service, including fire protection from fire hydrants at a nominal price of $500 a year.

Then some enterprising public servant conceived the notion that the great state of Wisconsin should own its own water plant, and so the interstate State Board of Control installed a private plant at an expense of several thousand dollars.

When completed it was insufficient for fire protection and emergencies, and so the water company's mains are still attached and the state is paying more money than it ever paid before and running its own plant for the pleasure of seeing the wheels go round.

The same wise board erected a municipal building which was not needed at an expense of $14,000, and when completed this discovery was made that the only way to get a piano into the second story was through a window

by the aid of a block and tackle.

These extravaganzas are going on all over the state and nobody complains because it is nobody's business, and this is only one of a dozen departments.

The government of cities, which interests the local taxpayer more than either the state or national government, is subject to the same abuses through mismanagement and incompet-ency, and Janesville is no exception to the rule.

Men are elected to office without regard to fitness, but simply because of popularity to command the vote.

The title of an official adds nothing to a man's stature. It develops nothing in the way of intellectual business or financial ability.

A man may be so good that it is painful to be in his presence, and so honest that he would hesitate to bring a conductor, and yet totally unfit for office and responsibility.

The commission plan of government remedies these defects because it is concrete, and based on the same common sense business foundation which is recognized as vital to success, by all private corporations.

What has been everybody's business becomes somebody's business, and responsibility placed in the hands of three men is better than divided responsibility. Better streets, better service, better regulation and better morality, with an incentive to pull together, rather than pulling apart, are some of the advantages to be attained.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

BARNS ON THE WINDOWS.

"With what measure ye mete it shall be meted out to you."

Robert Morrison of Brooklyn owned a big factory where he made celluloid.

He put bars on the windows of the building to keep the burglars out.

He failed to put fire escapes on the building to help his employees get out in case of fire. Fire escapes would help the burglars to get in.

One day not long ago there was a fire in Morrison's factory. Great quantities of celluloid exploded. In a few minutes the doors were shut off by the flames. There was no way to get out but by the windows.

But the windows were barred.

"My God! My boy is in there!"

screamed Robert Morrison.

He tried to rush into the factory, but was held back by the police. He broke away and tried again. He was painfully burned before the police reached him.

And there in the hands of the police he looked at the burning factory and the barred windows. Ten persons were tugging at the bars. Morrison saw the face of his son among the others and then and there went insane.

The bars had done their work.

Ten bodies were taken out, among them that of young Morrison.

For a week the family succeeded in guarding Morrison in his paternal home. Early one morning he got into a bathroom and killed himself with gas.

The law of compensation holds.

He who takes all from the world and never gives, somehow, some time, somewhere there shall be "taken away even that which he hath."

No man liveth to himself. Every man is surely bound by a thousand intimate ties to every other man. You cannot rob another without robbing yourself.

If you put up the bars to your windows to keep your fellow man inside your selfish boundaries, have a care lest you or yours shall perish inside the selfish circle.

Howards of the bars on your windows!

Learn this—

That to love one's neighbor as oneself, to do to others as you would be done by, is not true simply because the sentiment was uttered in the Sermon on the Mount; it was uttered in that sermon because it is the only true rule of life and woven into the very constitution of things.

CITY FATHERS' BRIEF MEETING

BUSINESS WAS TRANSACTED WITH DISPATCH.

AT THE DAWN OF NEW YEAR

Portion of Jackson Street to Be Macadamized—Further Time for Phone Co. Demands.

There was nothing slow nor lackadaisical about the first regular meeting of the common council in the year 1910. Commencing promptly at half-past seven o'clock, the council met in the city hall.

Matters of Finance.
The finance committee's report on bills was read and adopted and an order passed directing the clerk to draw on the treasurer for $25, payable from the general fund to the Janesville Carriage Co. for a set of runners for the police patrol vehicle.

The judiciary committee asked for and was granted further time for the consideration of a communication from the Rock County Telephone Co. wherein attention was called to the fact that the city had not lived up to a "hooker" provision in the franchise stipulating that free service should be furnished the city clerk's office and fire stations on condition that this concern's telephones should be used exclusively, and wherein it was declared that after Feb. 1, unless the said provision should be complied with, the company would expect to collect rental at the regular rates.

Various Reports.
Favorable action was taken on the various reports submitted. The one from the board of education showed that orders totaling $24,83 had been drawn during the month of December. The municipal court accounting chronologically the collection of fees, fines, and penalties aggregating $165.50 during the same period. There were 72 arrests in December, according to Chief Appleby's report for the police department. Offenses were listed as follows: violation of city ordinances, 1; vagrancy, 1; larceny, 3; insanity, 1; hold for Madison authorities, 1; and drunkenness, 66. Thirty-six were taken to court and 36 discharged. Arrests were credited to the various officers as follows: Appleby, 9; Brown, 10; Fanning, 11; Morrissey, 13; Chapman, 7; Sam Brown, 4; Dorn, 13; Dalton, 4; and Dull, 1.

LARGE ENROLLMENT.

The Southern Wisconsin Business College opened the 1910 season with the largest enrollment of students they have ever enjoyed during this season of the year. W. W. Dale, the president, is to be commended upon his untiring efforts in bringing this college to the front.

The attendance now numbering 125 students, is an increase over January of last year.

The business college industry means considerable to the city of Janesville, as a large number of young people are brought to the city to live here for from 6 months to a year, many of whom secure positions in this city and remain here indefinitely.

The Athens training these young people receive fits them for the work Janesville business men want done and in this way the business college is of great benefit, not only to the business men but the young men and women who attend.

CONSIDERABLE LOSS BY FIRE AND SMOKE

Blaze at the J. M. Bostwick Residence on Court Street, Shortly Before Noon Today.

Fire and smoke entailed a loss of some fifteen hundred dollars in damage to the J. M. Bostwick residence on Court street shortly before noon today. The flames started in the kitchen and spread to the dining room before being extinguished. Handicapped by the snow, cold weather and lack of men, Chief Klein and his firemen, with the aid of members of the fire and police patrol did excellent work and nipped in the bud what promised to be a conflagration that would have destroyed the entire house had it gained sufficient headway. The origin of the fire could not be discovered but when the department arrived the blaze had communicated to the woodwork of the kitchen and was spreading onto the ceiling of this dining room. Prompt work with the chemicals prevented the flames from spreading and put the fire out without the use of any water. The worst damage will be from smoke although the flooring on the second floor is badly damaged and the flames crept up inside the partitions to the top of the house before being extinguished.

Second Fire

The patrol wagon and the sled which is used in place of one of the wagons had nearly reached the station, returning from the Bostwick fire, when a second call was sent in to extinguish a chimney fire at the restaurant of Edward J. Schmidley on West Milwaukee street. The fire was slight and quickly put out and the damage done was nominal.

Third Fire Alarm.

The fire department was called out late this afternoon to attend to a blaze in the partitions of Dr. G. G. Chittenden's house on North Academy street.

CATCHES THE CROOK WITH THE BIG BILL

Landlord Dave Young of Sterling Also Nipped—Gels Revenge and a Hundred Dollars for Trouble.

When the portly gentleman with two names, E. C. Harrison for the Grand hotel and W. B. Horton for the Myers, visited Janesville on Dec. 22 and flashed his five hundred dollar bill and secured "loans" of five dollars from each hotel manager, until his bill could be changed in the morning, he went away smiling and next he heard from at Sterling where Dave Young, formerly of the Grand hotel, is proprietor of the Gault House. Here he was known as E. M. Ross and his five hundred dollar bill had been broken into four one hundred dollar certificates. However, the single century proved too large for Mr. Young so he loaned the five and then kicked himself around a block for having been so easy. Feeling that his five needed company he used up five more in telephone calls and located Mr. "Ross" at Clinton, Iowa and secured his arrest. Handcuffed to the Iowa banister Mr. Young graciously accepted a hundred dollars for his trouble from the penitent Mr. "Ross" and is now "nifty" to the good while "Ross" has gone on his journey with three centuries left to dash on other hotel-keepers.

VIOLATES TERMS OF A CONTRACT

U. S. SUPREME COURT DECLARES CAR FARE ORDINANCE INVALID.

NEW JUSTICE TAKES OATH

Jurist Lorton Takes His Place on Bench—Listens to Analysis of His Former Ruling—Standard Oil Case Presented.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The United States supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Day, holds that the ordinance adopted by the Minneapolis (Minn.) city council requiring the Minneapolis Street Railway Company to sell six tickets for 25 cents is invalid and violates the terms of a contract. The company fought the ordinance on the ground that it was a violation of the contract implied in its charter, which, issued in 1877, was to run for 50 years and which authorized a charge of five cents for each ride. The United States circuit court for the district of Minnesota declared against the ordinance, and Justice Day's decision reverses that finding.

New Justice Takes Oath.

The new associate justice, Horace H. Lorton of Tennessee, took his seat on the bench of the supreme court of the United States at the incoming of the court at high noon. Delivering the decision of the supreme court affirming the decision of the state courts Justice Harlan quoted at length an opinion by Justice Lorton, when in another case he sat with President Taft, then judge in the circuit court. Mr. Lorton had just taken his seat on the bench and listened with evident interest to the analysis of his ruling by the oldest member of the court.

Oil Dissolution Case Up.

The case of the government versus the Standard Oil Company, involving an effort on the part of the government to have the company dissolved as a trust under the Sherman anti-trust law was presented to the supreme court in a preliminary way on a motion to advance the hearing.

J. E. Bates, the auditor of the D. A. R., has been asked to resign. It was denied that this step was taken because of his failure to discover Miss MacLay's defalcation.

PREPARES TO SUPPRESS THE NIGHT RIDER BAND

Government Will Bring Criminal Proceedings Against Producers' Organization.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The government is preparing to bring criminal action against the Burley Tobacco society with a view of suppressing the night riders in the Kentucky and Tennessee tobacco districts.

Convinced that the society is a combination and a conspiracy under the terms of the Sherman anti-trust law, the department of justice is investigating its operations on that ground. Agents recently have been sent to the tobacco growing regions for the purpose of making inquiry concerning the methods of the association, and they have reached the conclusion that the organization is connected with the depredations of the night riders, who recently have created so much disturbance in that section.

THE CAUSE OF COLDS

Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds

If people would only fortify and strengthen the system, the majority of cases of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are frequently due to weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened it becomes easily infected with germs which cause many of the diseases to which flesh is heir. Healthy mucous membranes are essential safeguards of the body's general health.

An excellent aid in the prevention of coughs, colds, pneumonia, and such like infectious diseases, is a remedy that will prevent or cure catarrh.

We have a remedy which we honestly believe to be unsurpassed in excellence for the prevention of coughs, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of thirty years of cure gained through the use of this formula. We promise to make no charge for the medicine should it fail to do us we claim. We urge everybody who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Muc-Tone. It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our own personal guarantee to this remedy if we were not prepared to prove the reasonableness of our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why any one should hesitate to accept our offer and try it. We have two sizes of Rexall Muc-Tone, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Sometimes a 50-cent bottle is sufficient to give marked relief. As a general thing the most chronic case is relieved with an average of three large bottles. You can obtain Rexall Remedies in Janesville, only at our store.—The Rexall Store—The Smith Drug Co.

BANKER MORSE NO. 2,814 TO TOIL IN TAILOR SHOP

Convicted Millionaire Done Prison Garb and Assigned to Steel Cell.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 4.—Charles W. Morse, the former millionaire banker convicted of violating the national banking laws, began his 15-year term in the federal prison in this city.

He is registered as convict No. 2,814, and occupies a steel cell not in the least different from those to which are assigned the several hundred other prisoners. His immaculate tailored garments gave way to a regulation suit of stripes. The distinguished prisoner did not escape the Bertillon expert, the prison photographer, the regulation bath and the barber.

Morse probably will be assigned to the tailor shop.

Just before reaching Atlanta, Mr. Morse granted an interview to a newspaper man.

"This is not the end," he declared. "In fact, it is but the beginning. The fight has just started."

New York, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Charles W. Morse, wife of the former tea king, started for Atlanta. She was accompanied by her two sons from their home.

Mrs. Morse said that she may make her home near the prison for some time.

"I refuse to believe that my husband will serve the full sentence," Mrs. Morse said. "Death is the only final accident of life. The walls are now carrying a blank petition for pardon to hundreds of persons, most of them unknown to me, who have written in protest against the injustice of the sentence."

Babe Kills Five-Year-Old Sister.

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 4.—While playing with a loaded rifle at Seneca, Kan., the five-year-old daughter of H. H. Rottingham placed the muzzle in her mouth and her three-year-old brother pulled the trigger. The little girl was instantly killed.

New Lamp for Mines.

A new lamp for use in mines has recently been invented. The lamp is placed within a large glass globe, which is upright. Between the lamp and the globe pure air is enclosed, and when the lamp is lighted, the air is expanded by the heat. In case the lamp should be so injured as to expose the incandescent filament to the gases in the mine, the compressed air between the two globes is driven into the broken lamp before the air of the mine can enter. The influx of compressed air extinguishes the lamp before the explosive air of the mine is able to reach it. The lamp is fed by a single-cell storage battery, which is enclosed in a celluloid case.

ADDS $60,000,000 TO HIS CAPITAL

MORGAN MERGES TWO BIG CONCERNS WITH GUARANTY COMPANY.

J. P. CONTROLS $1,809,000,000

Largest Holdings Are Resources of the New York Life and the Equitable Insurance Companies—New Deal Strengthens Position.

New York, Jan. 4.—By a merger with the Thomas F. Ryan and Levi P. Morgan trust companies, J. Pierpont Morgan added $60,000,000 to the combination of capital he controls and brings the total banking capital under his direction up to $1,809,000,000.

The largest items in this accumulation are the New York Life Insurance Company, with $557,000,000 resources and capital, and the Equitable, purchased December 1, 1909, with $162,000,000 capital and resources.

Largest Merger of Its Kind.
The merger by which Morgan, Ryan and Morgan linked hands in New York unites resources of $160,000,000. It is a triple combination, bringing the Guaranty Trust Company, the Morton Trust Company and the Fifth Avenue Trust Company, all of this city, under one head, with the title of the Guaranty Trust Company. Morgan owned the Guaranty Trust Company. The merger is perhaps the largest of its kind in the United States.

Directors of all three companies met and informally approved the terms of the merger, which will be put in more definite form on Wednesday, when another directors' meeting will be held and the plan ratified by the stockholders, although a formal vote on the matter will not be taken until later.

Morton to Be Chairman.
Levi P. Morton, who is president of the Morton Trust Company and the Fifth Avenue Trust Company—both known as Morton-Ryan concerns—has consented to act as chairman of the board of the merged companies, for which no president has as yet been selected. The name of Alexander J. Hemphill, vice-president and acting president of the Guaranty Trust Company, has been mentioned for the position, however.

SENORA ZELAYA A DISTURBER.
She's Credited with Being Greater Political Ploter Than Husband.
Washington, Jan. 4.—Rumors of the exchange of peace proposals between Gen. Estrada, head of the revolutionary government, and President Madrid of Nicaragua find no official verification at the state department.

A dispatch from Vice-Consul Caldera gives the surprising information that Senora Zelaya, wife of the exiled dictator, is at Managua, the capital, and greatly in evidence. She was thought to be in Antwerp.

The senora may be an element of disturbance, for she is credited by Central American diplomats with being as great a political plotter as her husband. She is a brilliant woman, handsome and exceptionally magnetic. Bluefields, Nicaragua, Jan. 4.—Gen. Estrada's campaign into the western half of Nicaragua has been begun. The entire provisional army, which won the recent victory at Rerebo, is being transported in boats up the Mico river to Chini, which will replace Rerebo as the base of supplies. A decisive battle is expected at Acayapo.

FORMER U.S. TREASURER HELD.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Former United States Treasurer J. N. Huston, with offices in New York city; Samuel Graham of Montreal, Canada; Harvey M. Lewis and Everett Dufour of this city were indicted by the grand jury on the charge of conspiracy and of using the mails for fraudulent purposes.

Through two trust companies, with which the men are alleged to have been connected, they are said to have offered a guaranty stock of other companies on the basis of a commission of one per cent. of the stock guaranteed. The inspectors say they failed to find any material funds to justify the guaranty claims.

ROCKEFELLER, JR., HEADS WHITE SLAVE INQUIRY

Is Foreman of Grand Jury Instructed to Delve Into Illegal Traffic.

New York, Jan. 4.—Charged with the task of inquiring into the traffic in women, with a view to rigid prosecution or an end to sensational slanders against New York city, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was made foreman of the grand jury.

Charles S. Whitman, the new district attorney, began a similar inquiry on his first official day in office. He assigned a special assistant to examine witnesses, and in a statement given out urges that the public come forward with any and all evidence that such traffic exists.

When Judge O'Sullivan observed Rockefeller's name among those drawn for the special grand jury he immediately asked him to assume the foremanship.

Rockefeller begged to be excused, pleading ill health and a stress of personal business matters.

"We have a very important inquiry to pursue," said Judge O'Sullivan, "and I believe you owe the community this duty."

Rockefeller withdrew his excuse, was sworn in as foreman, and took immediate charge.

He will meet with the special grand jury each week day during the month, or until the body is ready to make its report to the court.

FINNS PREPARING FOR WARFARE

Seizure of Arms Reveals a Widespread Smuggling Conspiracy.

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 4.—Russian authorities seized 3,000 rifles and revolvers and 1,000,000 cartridges that were being smuggled into Finland by prospective revolutionists under the guise of furniture. The seizure developed the fact that for months Finnish traders have been laying in supplies of arms and ammunition, which have been smuggled into the country in almost every shipment of merchandise.

This indicates that Russia's final absorption of the duchy will result in war. So many attempts to wreck truces between Helsingfors and St. Petersburg have been made recently by Finns that the entire line is now under guard.

FALLING WALL KILLS FIREMEN.

Four Lose Lives in Big Blaze at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Jan. 4.—Fire in the local plant of the American Bridge Company last night caused the death of four firemen who were buried under a falling wall and financial loss of about $250,000.

It was at first thought that the entire engine company No. 4 had perished, and not until all of the debris had been removed was it determined that there were no other bodies in the ruins. Several firemen were injured and several suffered frost bitten noses and ears while fighting flames.

76 SOLDIERS ARE ARRESTED.

Refused to Walk Fifteen Miles on New Year's Day.

New London, Conn., Jan. 4.—Seventy-six of the 81 members of the One Hundred and Thirty-first company, coast artillery, U. S. A., stationed at Fort H. G. Wright, Fisher's Island, have been placed under arrest for refusing orders to take the 15-mile hike around the island on New Year's day.

Japanese Ambassador and his wife, as they appeared in San Francisco on their way to Washington—Baron Uchida and his wife. From photograph taken exclusively for this paper.

(By Special Correspondent.)
San Francisco.—"I don't think that the death of Prince Ito will have any significance in Korea. Of course in time it may bring about some changes, but for the present things are quiet. As far as Manchuria is concerned we still follow the open-door policy. We have settled all questions in that country. As you know, Manchuria is a territory of China and is not in any way connected with either Japan or Russia."

This statement was made by Baron Uchida, the new ambassador from Japan to the United States, upon his arrival this week on the Japanese liner Tenyo Maru from the Orient. The baron was accompanied by the baroness and left the steamer off Melges wharf, being brought ashore on the customs tug Golden Gate with a large police guard.

In response to questions as to conditions in the Orient, the new ambassador declared that everything was quiet. "I am always glad to come to the United States as I feel that I am coming home," he said. "This is my fourth visit within the last 21 years and I look forward to many pleasant trips in this country."

"There is one thing I would like to state in regard to conditions in China. We are glad in Japan that the business men of this country are going to invest money in China, for the development of China will be of great advantage to Japan. The opening of China's interior, with its vast resources, promises big development of the market in the far east."

I regard to the report that has been published from time to time to the effect that Russia was again making ready to take a hand in Manchurian affairs, Baron Uchida said:

"The questions with Russia have all been settled satisfactorily. There is a good understanding in Manchuria and we have always abided by the policy of Mr. May."

The new ambassador speaks good English. Turning to the baroness, however, he willingly said that she had a much better command of the language, as she had been a student at Iyom New. The baroness in turn smilingly admitted that America was her second home.

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprised me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years."

Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine. Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, January 4, 1910.—Theatrical.—John Dillon was heartily received at Lippin's Hall last evening, an appreciative audience applauding the many happy hits of the inimitable actor. Tonight Colonel Hawn is presented and will afford an excellent entertainment.

Jailings.—On New Year's Eve, a sleigh load of company from the Borden House visited "Cedar Lawn" and enjoyed themselves hugely on the hospitalities of Mr. and Mrs. Leavett. A little daughter of John Scheeleker skated into a hole on the river this afternoon and was drowned. Twelve hundred barrels of flour were shipped from the Janesville station one day last week. Think of that, hungry mortals!

The property known as the "white school house" in the 1st ward is to be sold at auction on the 15th inst.

The U. S. Steamer "Powhatan" has arrived at Philadelphia, the vessel upon which Major Wm. H. Parker, formerly of this city, was in command of the marines. Old "Fred," the pet family horse of O. W. Norton, took a lively turn through the streets this morning. The owner drove to the door of the Corn Exchange and stepped out the sleigh a moment when the horse started, ran across the upper bridge, throwing a shoe in the race, and fetching up at a blacksmith's shop; it is supposed for the purpose of having the missing shoe reset. The horse sustained no damage and that received by the sleigh is but trifling. Said horse has travelled the streets of Janesville for the last ten years, driven by men, women and children. He is either coming to his coldest again or the manager looking out of the Corn Exchange windows was too much for his nerves—it is for most horses.

The Island of Regeneration

By: Cyrus Townsend Brady

"But this," returned the islander, with fierceness, "is not a matter for advice. I don't know the world or its customs. I must appear strange to you men. But I take it that a man's choice of a wife, a man's settlement of his future is not a thing that he brooks counsel over. At any rate, I want none of it."

"Come with me," said the chaplain; "we will talk it over. I have lived in the world. I went on, gently. Perhaps I can help you. Have you your permission to withdraw, Capt. Ashby?"

"Certainly," said the captain. "Pardon me a moment, chaplain," interposed Whittaker; "but the young lady has asked that some of us go ashore to take her deposition as to the matters that have been alleged concerning our friend here, Capt. Ashby, will you?"

"Certainly," Mr. Whittaker, I will go. And if you will accompany me, doctor, and you, chaplain, I shall be glad. Mr. Whittaker, you are a notary public and can administer the necessary oaths."

"Very good, sir," returned Mr. Whittaker. The other gentlemen bowed their acquiescence. "The lady said she would like to be undisturbed until evening."

"At two bells in the second dog watch then have the cutter called away," returned the captain.

"Beg pardon, captain," said the surgeon, "but do you or any of you know this lady to be Miss Brenton?"

"No," said the captain, "I don't know her. No you, Mr. Whittaker, or you, chaplain?"

"Well, then," said the surgeon, as both the officers shook their heads, "it will be necessary to have some one ashore who does know her in order to swear to her identity to make her deposition worth anything."

"There is Langford," said Whittaker, "he knows her."

"Very good," said the captain; "send a boat over to the yacht and present my compliments to Mr. Langford. Ask him if he will meet us ashore at quarter after five o'clock. Say to him also that I should be glad to have him dine with me to-night at seven. Chaplain, will you and Mr. Churnock take luncheon with me later?"

Now, to go back to the island. The woman stood on the strand proudly, resolutely, sternly erect, without a sign of unbending until the boats reached the sides of the two ships.

Even then she kept herself in the hands of a control of steel. She turned slowly, walked up the beach, entered the grove of palms, mechanically found the path and plodded along it, still erect and unbending, until the windings of the trail and the thickening of the grove hid her from any chance watchers on the ship.

Then came the moment of yielding. As if the tension had been suddenly released, she reeled, staggered; her heart almost stopped. Her instinct was to throw herself prone upon the grass, but she recovered herself in time and, with the natural inclination of the troubled toward the place, however rude and humble it may be, that is called home, she summoned her strength and dragged herself on through the trees over the hill—where a backward glance would have given her a sight of the ships, but she never took it—down the other slope across the beach and to the cave which had been her haven for these three years.

Then, and not until then, did she give way completely. She threw herself down upon the sand in the cool shadow of the great rocks in what to her had suddenly become a weary land, and outstretched her arms as if to clasp the earth to her breast in default of the man she had dreamed of.

And trusted, she had loved and lived for, and lay there a silent, shuddering, wretched figure.

Her crushing disappointment at his failure to rise to the measure of her ideal of him, the total end of her dream of happiness, the breaking of all her hopes, the closing of all her ambitions, the tearing asunder of her heartstrings whelmed her in agony. She had thought that never could humanity experience more than the pain superinduced by the horror of her position upon the ship, but that pain to the present was like a caress. For to all that old horror was added a new sense of loss, of disappointment and despair. She had not loved before; now she did, and the sorrow and anguish were measured by the depth and power of her passion. The period on the yacht had been an episode. This was life, eternal life or death, she thought. And it shows the power of the episode that it had colored and would color—was it darkly?—all the future.

That Christian philosophy which she had fondly believed she had acquired, and in which—O fatal error!—she had somehow taken pride, fell from her like every other quality, good or bad, that is developed alone. It had lacked exercise. She, too, had submitted to no tests since she had come to the island. She had surmounted no temptations. She had fought no battles. She had not become a veteran by conquest. She had not perfected her offensive and defensive weapons by a series of smaller conflicts which would give her confidence and courage to fight the great and final battle. Like Elijah of old, dismayed, disheartened, broken, she prayed that she might die there on the sands.

CHAPTER XIX. The Man's Failure.

At five o'clock a boat put off from the big white cruiser, conveying the islander, the captain, the other officers and Langford to the shore. The woman met them on the sand. She had discarded her wavy tunic and was dressed in the faded blue blouse and skirt which she had worn when she had left the yacht and which she had ever since preserved with such scrupulous care for an emergency like this. Well was it for her that the garments were loose and easy-fitting, else she could not have put them on, so splendidly had she developed in waist and chest and limb. She wore stockings and shoes, and, save for a certain natural elegance and freedom in her bearing, she looked much as any other woman, except that few women were as beautiful as she.

Her face, always colorless, was paler than ever. Something of the anguish that she had gone through was seen there by the keen eyes of Whittaker, at least, and even the others could notice the strong constraint she put upon herself and the evidences of self-restraint were painfully apparent.

After a momentary hesitation and a glance at the islander, who, after his first swift, comprehending survey of the woman, stood with averted head—she, conscious painfully of his every gesture and movement—the lieutenant commander performed the necessary introductions. This ceremony over, it was the woman who spoke.

"I sent for you, gentlemen," she began, "in order that a necessary deposition might be made to enable, if possible, my"—she paused and bowed formally toward the islander—"this gentleman, to establish his identity, upon which, as I learn from Mr. Whittaker, much seems to depend. I have here—"

"But could you not do this more conveniently later on the ship, Miss Brenton?" interposed the captain. He had been told that she intended to stay on the island, but he could not believe it. "We shall be very glad indeed to offer you passage home. The ship is fitted for a flag and the admiral's quarters are yours to command. We are sailing direct to the United States, with a stop at Honolulu, and will be glad to restore you to your friends."

"Sir," said the woman, "I have no friends who care enough about me to welcome me or whom I care enough about to wish to see. My mind is made up. I shall stay on the island, at least for the present."

"But, my dear young lady," began the officer.

"Capt. Ashby," said the woman, "you are the commander of that ship?"

"I am."

"To you is committed the ordering of her course?"

"To me alone, Miss Brenton."

"You decide all questions connected with her on your own responsibility?"

"I do, certainly; but—"

"Sir, this is my ship, this island. If I choose to stay here, I cannot think you will endeavor to take me hence by force."

"By no means."

"Nor have I any more fondness for having my decisions discussed than you would have for hearing your orders argued or questioned."

"It is my island," cried the man, roughly, "and if you stay, I stay."

"We lose time," said the woman, shortly. "I am here to give my testimony; you are prepared to take it?"

"I am," said the lieutenant commander, stepping forward, notebook in hand.

"Captain, will you conduct the necessary inquiry?"

"Certainly," said the captain. "Mr. Langford, do you identify this lady?"

"I do, sir," answered Langford, "She is Miss Katherine Brenton of San Francisco."

"You say this of your own personal knowledge?"

"Yes, sir."

"You will make affidavit to that fact?"

"With pleasure."

"I wondered," said the woman, bitterly, "why you came back."

You can make better bread and cake, in less time and with less work.

Other bread mixers are excessively hard to use, and not one of them actually kneads the dough; rolling dough around in a pail is not kneading it, and most of these machines utterly fail to work when a very small baking is tested.

The MARVEL Bread Kneader actually kneads the dough as with human hands, but with far greater speed and with but very little labor. It makes lighter bread and cake, better in every way, than when kneaded or mixed by hand. The leaflet in every sack of Marvel Flour tells how you can get it free.

The Optimist's Corner
Daily Helps to Health and Happiness
By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A.M., M.D.
The world is not all bad. If it seems a bad, unappreciative world it is due to the way you look at it; you may be looking through distorted eyes. Forget for a moment the pleasure of acquiring. Look about you at the good things being done by your neighbors and the world. You will find the truth and you will be glad. Goodness is in everyone; often negative in those who are all goodness, but positive in those whose whiteness is flecked with little black spots. This is true; think it over. No, the world is not bad. It is good, and growing better. Creeping and crawling under the cloaks of old superstitions and beliefs are rapidly being supplanted by the boldness and freedom of independent thought. Simple, earnest, strengthening love is the creed of to-day and tomorrow. None other is necessary or wise. Sympathy, love, helpfulness, charity, mercy, brotherhood are abundant today, and it is the knowledge of their power that is slowly but surely awakening the good that so often lies dormant in us.
It is easy for you to learn lessons in goodness; the efficacy of charity, without red tape; the beauty of giving, not as an investment, and the value to you of optimism. Let your mind dwell on the good and sunny side of life and you will quickly acquire a habit of cheerfulness.
Shifting the Loss.
Differed—"Here comes two evil looking rascals. I shouldn't wonder if we were held up." "I'm afraid so. By the by, here's that dollar you lent me this morning."—Magendorfer Blatter.
An Elastic License.
"I may have been in error," admitted the bard, "but my poetic license ought to cover the infraction." "Cover" such a "cover" as that? Say, you'll be using that license to run an auto next."

TWICE AS HAPPY.

"I'm happier since we separated."
"Yes."
"Um. He used to allow me $10 a week. Now he has to pay $20."
